

HEALTH INSURANCE PORTABILITY AND ACCOUNTABILITY ACT (HIPAA) NOTICE OF PRIVACY PRACTICES

THIS NOTICE DESCRIBES HOW MEDICAL INFORMATION ABOUT YOU MAY BE USED AND DISCLOSED AND HOW YOU CAN GET ACCESS TO THIS INFORMATION. PLEASE REVIEW IT CAREFULLY.

Protecting your privacy

Psychologists have always managed psychological records with great concern for privacy and confidentiality. Although the security of psychological records have continuously been addressed by my profession's Code of Ethics, as well as State and Federal laws, the rules have been considerably strengthened by the provisions of the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA). The following information provides details about the provisions of the HIPAA and your rights concerning privacy and your psychological records.

Who will observe these rules?

The following individuals are required by HIPAA to comply with the privacy rules:

- Your treating psychologist. This includes Dr. Joyce and/or anyone else with whom you consult for regular appointments.
- Any administrative assistant or office staff who may have some access to your identifying information (such as your name, address, telephone number, etc.).
- Any billing agency or collection agency that handles information about you (name, address, diagnostic codes, treatment codes, consultation dates, but not actual clinical records).

YOUR RIGHTS REGARDING MEDICAL INFORMATION ABOUT YOU

You have the following rights regarding your medical information:

The right to inspect and obtain a copy of your medical record.

Professional records constitute an important part of the therapy process and help with the continuity of care over time. According to the rules of HIPAA, your consultations are documented in two ways: 1) The clinical record (required) may include the date of your consultations, your reasons for seeking therapy, diagnosis, therapeutic goals, treatment plan, progress, medical and social history, treatment history, functional status, any past records from other providers, as well as any reports to your insurance carrier; 2) Psychotherapy notes (optional), consisting of the specific content or analyses of therapy conversations, how they impact the therapy (including sensitive information that you may reveal that is not required to be included in your clinical record), and notes of your therapist that may assist in treatment. Psychotherapy notes are kept separately from your clinical record in order to maximize privacy and security.

You have the right to inspect and obtain a copy of your clinical record. Viewing the record is best done during a professional consultation in order to clarify any questions that you might have at the time. You may be charged a nominal fee for accessing and photocopying the record. Psychotherapy notes, however, if they are created, are not disclosed to third parties, HMOs, insurance companies, billing agencies, clients, or anyone else. They are for the use of a treating therapist in tracking the many details of the therapy sessions/consultations that are far too specific to be entered into the clinical record.

The right to request a correction or add an addendum to your psychological record.

If you believe that there is an inaccuracy in your clinical record you may request a correction. If the information is accurate, or has been provided by a third party (e.g., previous therapist, primary care physician, etc.), it may remain unchanged, and the request may be denied. In this case, you will receive an explanation in writing with a full description of the rationale. You also have the right to make an addition to your record if you think it is incomplete.

The right to an accounting of disclosures of your psychological information to third parties.

You have the right to know if, when, and to whom your psychological information has been disclosed (exclusive of treatment, payment, and health care operations). However, you would likely already be aware of this, as you would have signed consent forms allowing such disclosures (e.g., disclosures to other psychotherapists, primary care physicians, specialists, etc.). This accounting must extend back for a period of six years.

The right to request restrictions on how your information is used.

You have the right to request restrictions on certain uses or disclosures of your psychological information. These requests must be in writing. These requests will most likely be honored, although in some cases they may be denied. Dr. Joyce does not use or release your protected health information for marketing purposes or any other purpose aside from treatment, payment, healthcare operations, and other exceptions specified in this notice.

The right to request confidential communications.

You have the right to request that your therapist communicates with you about your treatment in a certain way or at a certain location. For example, you may prefer to be contacted at work instead of at home to schedule or cancel an appointment, or you may wish to receive billing statements at a post office box rather than your home address.

The right to receive a copy of this notice upon request.

You have the right to have a copy of this Notice of Privacy Practices.

The right to file a complaint.

If you are concerned that I have violated your privacy rights, or you disagree with a decision I made about access to your records, you may discuss this with me at any time. You may also file a written complaint to the California State Board of Psychology online at <http://www.psychboard.ca.gov/consumers/filecomplaint.shtml> or download and mail it to: Board of Psychology, 2005 Evergreen Street, Suite 1400, Sacramento, CA 95815.

If you have any questions or concerns about this notice or this health information privacy policy, please contact Dr. Erin Joyce: (424) 535-4126.

HOW I MAY USE AND DISCLOSE PSYCHOLOGICAL INFORMATION ABOUT YOU

For treatment

I will use psychological information about you to assist in the continuity of treatment and services. This information will not be shared with other health care professionals unless you specifically request or consent to it by signing a written consent form to that effect.

For payment

I may use and disclose psychological information about you for billing purposes. This is generally restricted to the following information: your name and other personal identifiers (e.g., address and other relevant information such as social security number or Medicare number, or other needed information), diagnostic and treatment codes, dates of service, and similar information.

ERIN JOYCE, PSY.D.
Clinical Psychologist (Lic. # PSY25785)

For health care operations

I may share basic identifying information with an administrative assistant or other office staff to assist in scheduling or other treatment procedures. This would not normally include the contents of your psychological record.

As required by law

It is possible (but unlikely) that the Department of Health and Human Services may review how I comply with the regulations of HIPAA. In such a case, your personal health information could be revealed as a part of providing evidence of compliance.

Business associates

I may contract with a billing agency or attorneys to attend to business aspects on an as-needed basis. In this case, there will be a written contract in place with the agency requiring that it maintain the security of your information, in compliance with the rules of HIPAA.

CHANGES TO THIS NOTICE

This notice went into effect on January 1, 2011. Please note that this privacy notice may be revised from time to time. You will be notified of changes in the laws concerning privacy or your rights as I become aware of them. In the meantime, please do not hesitate to raise any questions or concerns about confidentiality with me at any time.
